

Political Activism in the Linguistic Landscape

Or, how to use Public Space as a Medium for Protest

Philip Seargeant, Korina Gioxoglou and Frank Monaghan

This graphic novel looks at political activism in the public landscape with a particular focus on the UK activist group Led by Donkeys. The book is both an innovative approach to the presentation of academic research, and an exploration of how political activism can use the linguistic landscape as a resource for communicating its message.

Essays in Linguistic Ethnography

Ethics, Aesthetics, Encounters

Adrian Blackledge and Angela Creese

This book argues for an approach to linguistic ethnography which departs from the perspective of the academic researcher, to amplify instead the voices of participants, researchers and collaborators. It reflects on ways of reporting research which add multiple perspectives and represent ambiguity more meaningfully than traditional academic prose.

The Anti-Racism Linguist

A Book of Readings

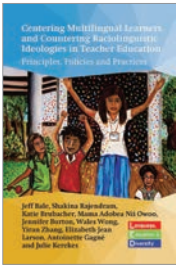

Edited by Patricia Friedrich

Reflective accounts of personal experiences and conceptual discussions build powerful pathways towards forging resistance and affirming human dignity.

RYUKO KUBOTA, UNIVERSITY OF BRITISH COLUMBIA, CANADA

This book explores language at the intersection of race and ethnicity and the institutional practices that still make for uneven access to education, resources and a sense of belonging. The book is a thoughtful reflection on how teachers and scholars can incorporate anti-racism pedagogy and thought into their practice.

Centering Multilingual Learners and Countering Raciolinguistic Ideologies in Teacher Education

Principles, Policies and Practices

Edited by Jeff Bale, Shakina Rajendram, Katie Brubacher, Mama Adobea Nii Owoo, Jennifer Burton, Wales Wong, Yiran Zhang, Elizabeth Jean Larson, Antoinette Gagné and Julie Kerekes

This book details a study of teacher education programs that prepare teachers to work with multilingual learners. The book examines how racism and linguisticism shape the conditions under which teacher candidates learn how to teach, and offers guiding principles and a suite of teacher education practices to disrupt the interplay of language and race.

Language Ideologies and L2 Speaker Legitimacy

Native Speaker Bias in Japan

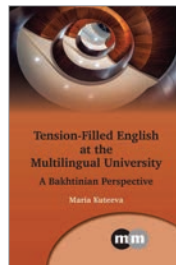

Jae DiBello Takeuchi

Takeuchi's fascinating new book provides sophisticated and nuanced analyses focused on "speaker legitimacy" and the ownership of language for L2 Japanese speakers in Japan. A must read.

NERIKO MUSA DOERR, RAMAPO COLLEGE OF NEW JERSEY, USA

This book examines dilemmas faced by second language Japanese speakers as a result of persistent challenges to their legitimacy as speakers of Japanese. It explores ideologies linked to three core speech styles of Japanese – keigo or polite language, gendered language and regional dialects – to show how such ideologies impact L2-Japanese speakers.

Tension-Filled English at the Multilingual University

A Bakhtinian Perspective

Maria Kuteeva

Compellingly written, this must-read book shows how new insights a Bakhtinian perspective can contribute to understandings of why standard English continues to dominate in multilingual universities.

ANNA KRISTINA HULTGREN, THE OPEN UNIVERSITY, UK

This book explores the idea that English in the multilingual university is filled with and surrounded by tensions. Drawing on Bakhtin's theory and examples from Sweden, it offers the reader a novel way of tracing the links between language perceptions and practices on the ground, and the forces and processes which govern these practices.

Motivation to Learn Multiple Languages in Japan

A Longitudinal Perspective

Chika Takahashi

This book is riveting and illuminating! Readers will be fascinated by the nuanced analyses of the ebbs and flows in the multilingual motivational trajectories of two Japanese learners of multiple languages as they successfully but differently negotiate context and agency over nine years.

LOURDES ORTEGA, GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY, USA

Bilingual Science Learning in South Africa

Robyn Tyler

Robyn Tyler provides a beautifully detailed, as well as theoretically and methodologically innovative, linguistic ethnography of the 'coloniality of language' and 'decolonial cracks' in high school science learning on the periphery of Cape Town.

CAROLYN MCKINNEY, UNIVERSITY OF CAPE TOWN, SOUTH AFRICA

In this ethnography of bilingual science learning, the author connects microanalyses of classroom discourse to broader themes of de/coloniality in education. The author examines the linguistic landscape of the school and the attitudes of staff and students which produce both coloniality and cracks in the edifice of coloniality.

Edited by Heidi Bojsen, Petra Daryai-Hansen, Anne Holmen and Karen Risager

This book is timely in addressing the resistant knowledge embodied and enacted in language diversity through speech communities we don't often hear in translanguing scholarship.

SURESH CANAGARAJAH, PENNSYLVANIA STATE UNIVERSITY, USA

Using data from universities in Asia, Central and North America, Europe and the Maghreb, this book provides examples of the heuristic value of translanguaging and epistemological decentring, and argues that decentring cannot happen until learners are able to identify which sorts of centring dynamics and conditions are salient to their learning.

Second Language Literacy Pedagogy

A Sociocultural Theory Perspective

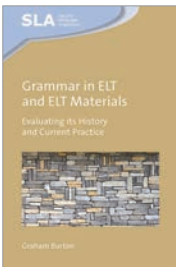

Kimberly Buescher Urbanski

This book is unique in so many ways. This is a must-read for anyone interested in a Vygotskian perspective of second language literacy development.

MERRILL SWAIN, OISE, UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO, CANADA

This book provides a detailed design of a new second language literacy pedagogy and the results of implementing it in different contexts so as to address literacy development challenges. The author explains the theory behind Vygotskian Sociocultural Theory of Mind and Systemic Functional Linguistics and how they can inform literacy pedagogy.

Grammar in ELT and ELT Materials

Evaluating its History and Current Practice

Graham Burton

Burton takes the reader on a thought-provoking tour of ELT grammar instruction that includes a historical perspective, interviews with stake holders, and detailed case studies of several popular coursebooks. It is an interesting picture of grammar and grammar instruction that leaves the reader with plenty of food for thought.

RANDI REPPEN, NORTHERN ARIZONA UNIVERSITY, USA

This book investigates the content of the grammar syllabuses typically employed in mainstream English Language Teaching. Using a mixed-methods approach, the author examines how the syllabuses used in coursebooks are actually constructed, how they evolved and how valid their contents are as a basis for teaching.

Developing Writing Competence in L2 Chinese Classrooms

Research and Application

Edited by Li Yang and Laura Valentín-Rivera

This impressive book contains eight empirical studies on the process and product of L2 Chinese writing competence development at different proficiency levels, in different pedagogical contexts, and with different learning backgrounds. The data-driven pedagogical recommendations from each study offer valuable insights for both L2 researchers and practitioners.

CHUANREN KE, PROFESSOR EMERITUS, UNIVERSITY OF IOWA, USA

This edited volume focuses on writing Chinese as a second language (L2). It provides readers with cutting-edge empirical research and insightful teaching methods and strategies for effectively developing L2 writing competence in L2 Chinese classroom contexts.

Teaching and Learning Third Languages

Francesca D'Angelo

The book offers a rich insight in the field of Third Language Acquisition, bridging the gap between language education and research. It explores the key linguistic and cognitive factors that make it different from Second Language Acquisition in terms of process and area of study. It is a precious resource for language learners, scholars, and teachers interested in the practical implications of the most recent research on multilingual education.

ORIANA PALUSCI, UNIVERSITÀ DEGLI STUDI DI NAPOLI L'ORIENTALE, ITALY

Contributing to emerging research on third language acquisition, this book presents readers with a practical guide to understanding how these languages are processed, learned and taught. With examples from a range of learning contexts, it emphasises the role of teachers as bridges between education and research on multilingualism.

Cross-Linguistic Transfer of Writing Strategies

Interactions between Foreign Language and First Language Classrooms

Karen Forbes

In the context of increasingly multilingual global educational settings, this book provides a timely exploration of the phenomenon of cross-linguistic transfer of writing strategies (in particular, transfer from the foreign language to the first language) and presents a compelling case for a multilingual approach to writing pedagogy.
